Tyde.....

We have often brought back an artist who made a big impression here and that is just what Tyde did in 2011. They play blazing tunes on fiddle, accordion and driving rhythmic guitar and a rare unity and inventiveness of musicianship. This comes only from a deep understanding and respect for the music.

The Young 'Uns.....

Nobody sleeps when The Young'uns are in town. They may have established their fast-growing reputation in the folk world with sublime a cappella harmonies, but the Teesside trio – Sean Cooney, Michael Hughes and David Eagle – are an unlikely force of nature on stage, beguiling audiences with irrepressible humour, bold vocals, gripping storylines and innate musicality.

Horizontal Sunday.....

Horizontal Sunday have a contemporary approach to the traditional genre, which when coupled with their obvious love of the music and it's heritage make them a truly great band. The trio combines two Scots, Sarah Dorward who plays her native East Coast fiddle style, Becca Nice from Skye playing West Coast fiddle styles and clarsach and Lincolnshire melodeon maestro Dave Gray.

Nick Hennessey.....

Nick Hennessey is an internationally renowned storyteller and singer. He has performed across the world, in Japan, Canada, the United States and frequently throughout Scandinavia, in particular Finland where he has been researching the epic-singing traditions of Karelia over the last 12 years

Vicki Swann and Jonny Dyer.....

Vicki & Jonny effortlessly blend traditional material with contemporary interpretations and their own original compositions using guitar Scottish smallpipes, accordion and Swedish Nyckelharpa. Strong believers in letting the music tradition live and breathe through sensitive interpretation, Vicki and Jonny allow the melody to sing without any constraints.

JFK-B.....

Karl (melodeon) and James Taylor (guitar) were part of Furness Tradition's Freebandreel group. They both went on to play in Folkestra (Sage, Gateshead) where they teamed up with two young fiddle players Frankie Archer and Becky Harrison. They bring their fresh enthusiasm and energy to music from across Northern England, including influences from Cumbria, Yorkshire and Newcastle.

Long Lankin.....

Amy Jane Hardy: vocals, flute, whistle, mandolin, bodhran, Marion Gray: fiddle, vocals, Tanya Jackson: vocals, guitar, melodeon, Bulgarian tambura. Amy Hardy was also a part of Furness Tradition's Freebandreel – latterly as a tutor/mentor before taking up a Fine Art degree course in London. The band are attracting a lot of interest in the South and with a new record imminent.

SPECIAL FEATURED SHOW

Serious Kitchen.....

A riotous roller-coaster of a story, soaring from tenderness to wild hilarity, all in a perfectly formed folk tale. Nick Hennessey, Vicki Swan and Jonny Dyer combine as Serious Kitchen to create a brand new show. Drawing on the rich heritage of Scandinavian myths and stories, The Whispering Road blends Nick Hennessey's spellbinding storytelling with Vicki Swan & Jonny Dyer's experience in the Swedish folk music scene.

Furness Morris is our local dance side, and they are celebrating their 50th Anniversary this year. They dance mainly Cotswold Morris, with some Longsword, and they also have their own local Ulverston dance.

Rainbow Morris a dancing team based in the village of Saltaire, West Yorkshire. They dance with clogs, bells, garlands and hankies, in the North West tradition, and their 'sticks' were used in Salts Mill for weaving cloth.

Crook Morris a mixed group of Morris dancers based at Kendal, Cumbria. Formed in 1981, the side has become a familiar sight around the UK, dancing at various festivals and events. They dance Cotswold, Border, and Rapper dances.

Cricket on the Hearth are an Appalachian Dance group from Harrogate. The dancers wear shoes with toe and heel taps, and they perform percussive Appalachian steps to a band of fiddle, banjo, guitar, and mandolin. They choreograph all the dances themselves.

Argameles Clog were formed in 1976, and have been dancing North West Morris ever since. Based in Southport, they dance regularly in the evenings at local pubs throughout the summer and also at Folk Festivals.

Toby Bennett is a dancer, teacher and researcher with a fascination for traditional step dance. Toby is a winner of the Westmorland Step Dance Championship and Dancing England's 'Stepping Competition in Derby'. He is accompanied by Carolyn Francis on fiddle.
